The Chicago Inter Ocean: St. Louis is to be congratulated. She has a Noble man in the cabinet.

The military order of the Loyal Legion of the United States is again honored by having one of its members elected to the office of President of the United States. This makes the third president who has come from the ranks of the Loyal Legion. The order is no more a political organization.

None but complimentary words follow Mrs. Cleveland from the White House, over which she has presided with so much grace and dignity. Notwithstanding the political blunders of her husband, she is admired by the whole people by all political parties. Mrs. Harrison voices this sentiment by saying: "Mrs. Cleveland is positively the loveliest creature I ever saw, and I almost feel guilty in depriving her of a position that she deserves so well."

The following are the latest statistics concerning Niagara Falls: The outline of the American falls is about 1000 feet and the height about 155 feet. The descent in the rapids above the American falls is about forty feet to the half mile. The outlines of the horseshoe falls is about 2000 feet, the height about 155 feet and the descent in the rapid above about fifty-five feet to the three-quarters of a mile. The volume of water passing over both falls is about 15,000 cubic feet per minute, or about one cubic mile per week, or fifty-four cubic miles per year.

In spite of all the efforts of the democratic party, including the high-handed action of Governor Wilson, of West Virginia, to elect a majority of the next house of representatives, the republicans have a majority of three on the face of the certificate. Some of the democrats who have received certificates are plainly not entitled to them, and the result of several contests will increase their opponents' strength. Add to this the members to be chosen in the new states, and it is easy to see that the republicans will have a fair working majority when the regular session opens next December.

The Kansas senate has passed the bill to prevent trusts, combinations and pools, and it becomes a law. It provides that all arrangements, contracts, agreements, trusts or combinations between persons or corporations made with a view or which tend to prevent full and free competition in the importation or transportation of articles imported into this state, or in the product, manufacture or sale of domestic raw material, or for the use of money or to fix attorney fees and all arrangements, trusts or combinations designed or which tend to advance the cost to the consumer of any such articles, or which tend to advance or control the rate of interest for the loan or use of money to the borrower, are declared to be against public policy, unlawful and void. The bill provides a penalty of imprisonment and a fine not to exceed $1,000 for violation.

The 14th congress has done some things well worth remembering and many that the country would be glad to forget. Its first session will be memorable as the longest on record. The greatest length of time has been spent in discussing the tariff bill and the substitute for it, but by the most important piece of legislation accomplished has been the admission of four new states. Other important laws passed include the Chinese Exclusion Act, elevation of the head of Department of Agriculture to the rank of a cabinet officer, and the appropriation of the biggest sum ever set aside for river and harbor improvements. In connection with this it may be noted that President Cleveland has established beyond a peradventure his claim to the title of veteran par excellence. In his four years he has vetoed no less than 278 measures—157 more than all his predecessors taken together.

A telegram from Indianapolis says that J. M. Taylor, assistant chief operator in the Western Union telegraph office of that city, made a curious and interesting discovery while looking over the effects of an uncle who had died many years ago. On unrolling a map like canvas, eight feet long and twenty feet wide, he found it to contain an oil painting which bears a strong resemblance to Munke's "Christ Before Pilate." Further investigation led to the discovery of some old papers which disclosed the history of the painting, and also a hand-bill giving full description of it. According to the history of the work, the canvas was painted in 1822 by William Dunlap, an American artist of note, and was carried about for exhibition. The picture has not been exhibited since 1828, since which time it has been in the Taylor family. Several local artists examined the painting and pronounced it the work of a master. Those who saw Munke's painting and have seen this declare that the work is so similar that the one must have suggested the other, and that Munke must have had a knowledge of Dunlap's work.

Avoid appearance.—A worthy gentleman, having on a recently red nose, was low suspected of being a tippler on the street by those not acquainted with his strictly temperate habits. His unfortunate disfigurement was readily cured by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

A DAY OF HANDSHAKING.

THOUSANDS ATTEND THE FIRST RECEPTION.

Impetuous Office-Seekers Would Botch Wait.—Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland—Washington Gossip.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Indians are made perfectly at home at the White House now. No questions are asked when they put in an appearance, and the doors are made to swing inward as they approach. President and Mrs. Harrison gave them to understand when they called Tuesday that "when they are in town they must call" and be comfortable, as the latch string is always to be out. There were myriads of Indians around the executive mansion all day. First Messrs. Kinsley, Durbin, Throckmorton, Chambers, Huston, Sills, Tackett, Studebaker, and J. B. Cochran, Presidential electors from Indiana, called upon the President and were received with great cordiality. Upon the request of the President Mr. McKee showed the callers through the house, and they spent a large part of the forenoon with the family. Another party, composed in part of Harry Adams, Dan Ransdale, Messrs. Leonard, Hawkins, and other well-known Hoosiers, called and were given a similar greeting.

There was a constant stream of callers at the White House all day. President Harrison said at dinner in the evening that he had probably shaken the hands of eight thousand persons since daylight. It was a hard but a pleasant day's work. The Seventeenth Indiana regiment, the President's boys, were among the first to call, and Mrs. Harrison and Mrs. McKee came down into the east parlor to assist in receiving them. After each one had been given a warm and friendly handshake President Harrison did them the honor to ask that they should stand at his back and about him and support him throughout his reception. It was a splendid sight. The grim veterans, who stood by their commander in many a battle supported him in the new position they helped him to gain. The boys were in the presence of the President over two hours. The parting was one which gave evidence of devotion on both sides.

For awhile in the afternoon the crush of visitors became so great that it was necessary to close the doors at the White House in order that the delegations might be received with order. An old soldier with a badge of honor on his breast pounded on the door for admittance. The door was opened slightly by the sergeant in charge. "I was one of Gen. Harrison's boys," said the veteran, "and I would like to see him."

"Come right in and make yourself at home," was the response as the door came full open, and the old veteran entered, all wreathed in smiles, and wandered at leisure through the mansion. So it went all the afternoon.

IMPORTANT OFFICE-SEEKERS.

They Will Have to Wait Till the Administration Gets Settled.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Office-seekers are doing their worst to get into the administration in rushing upon the President and his cabinet officers and upon the friends of these men just at this time. Their importunities are not in season. There will be three or four cabinet meetings held before appointments are made. The first selections will be of the assistants to the cabinet officers. Then will come the heads of bureaus and the chiefs of divisions. All this will be done before appointments are made to offices located throughout the country, except where emergencies arise—that is, to fill vacancies already existing or to succeed officers who are considered incompetent or unfit for the places they occupy. Secretary-General Woodbridge does not intend to begin the consideration of applications for positions until some time next week. He says he wants to become thoroughly conversant with the policy of the administration and to know the men who present the applications and to learn as thoroughly as possible the necessities of the situation before he begins action. There will be three assistant postmaster generals, a superintendent of the railway mail service, and other officers of the department selected before the thousands of applications for positions are taken into consideration. The same is true in all of the other departments. Secretary Blaine will choose a first and second assistant secretary and chief clerk and some other officers before he takes up the wagon load of applications which have been dumped on him for missions and consulates. The first and second assistant secretaries will be filled before the lower grades are acted upon.

MR. AND MRS. CLEVELAND.

The Latter's Absence from the Inaugural Ceremony Causes Gossip.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—There has been a good deal of gossip about the peculiar conduct of Mrs. Cleveland Monday, and so far no explanation has been offered. She did not attend the inaugural ceremonies and she was not present at the lunch given by President Cleveland to his succeeding in office. After the Presidential party had left the house for the capitol in the morning Mrs. Cleveland took a carriage for the residence of Secretary Fairchild, where she remained during the day. Never before has she failed in courtesy in any respect and has observed all of the conventionalities with the most rigorous fidelity. There fore her neglect of duty is more to be wondered at than her failure to support him as an ex-President should live. Most of the pets and domestic animals, including the dogs, will remain upon the place. The horses will be sent to New York for the use of the family over there.

Cleveland in New York.

New York, March 6.—Late Tuesday afternoon Proprietor Hoyt of the Victoria hotel received a telegram saying that ex-President Cleveland and Mrs. Cleveland would arrive at that hotel this evening from Washington.

Cleveland's Veto Record.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—President Cleveland succeeded in killing thirty bills with the pocket veto Monday, which makes 308 bills that he has vetoed since he entered the White House, or 187 more than his predecessors in the Presidential chair together. Sixteen of them were pension bills, and among the number was that granting a pension to the widow of the late Gen. Kilpatrick. Mrs. Kilpatrick is a Chilean woman, who was married to the General while he was minister to Chili.

Justice Matthews' Illness.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Justice Matthews is still unable to attend the sittings of the Supreme court. It is not expected now that he will be able to attend to his judicial duties before next October. His illness has been marked by several relapses, which have left him weak and unable to rally quickly.

DEATH OF MARY L. BOOTH.

Editor of "Harper's Bazar" and Author of the "History of New York City."

New York, March 6.—Miss Mary L. Booth, editor of Harper's Bazar, died at her residence, 101 East Fifty-ninth street, at 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Mary Louise Booth was born at Millville, N. Y., in 1831. Her father was a school-teacher, and for a few years of her early life she assisted him in the school. At the age of 25 she began literary work, and from that time on her industry was remarkable. Her chief work is the "History of the City of New York," first published in 1859, but since enlarged and brought down to 1880. Miss Booth translated many works from the French, among them Mary's "Andre Chenier," "Fairy Tales," "King of the Mountains," Cousin's "Secret History of the French Court," Henri Martin's "History of France," in seventeen volumes, and Laboulaye's "Fairy Tales." In 1867, when Harper's Bazar was founded, she became its editor, and held the position until her death. During the war she published translations of the writings of French sympathizers with the North on the subject of the rebellion, in which work she was encouraged by Lincoln, Sumner, and other Northern statesmen. She was a correspondent of many noted Frenchmen, and her home was a favorite resort of the literary people and artists of New York.

A Philanthropist Dying.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., March 6.—The venerable I. V. Williamson was stricken with paralysis this morning and now lies in a critical condition. Few names have been made as familiar through the agency of charitable gifts and when the sum total of his benefactions is given it will be found to be from $10,000 to $15,000, including his recent contribution for the establishment of a school for manual training.

INDIAN OUTBREAK FEARED.

The Flatheads Promise Trouble Unless Two White Murderers Are Arrested.

HELENA, M. T., March 6.—It was learned here today that there will be trouble at Flathead Lake unless J. E. Clifford and Dr. Cunningham are arrested without delay. The Indian assaulted by these parties some days ago died yesterday, and the father of the dead boy and the chief of the tribe have announced their intention to kill Clifford at all hazards. Major Roman, the agent, is attempting to prevent the Indians from carrying their threats into execution under promise of arresting Clifford and Cunningham and letting the law take its course. Warrants will be issued for these parties, and the law will surely ensue unless they are speedily arrested.

ROBBED THE POSTOFFICE.

Arthur R. Walker, a Gay Young Clerk, Charged With Stealing $600, is at the Penitentiary.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., March 6.—Arthur R. Walker, a clerk in the registered letter division of the Minneapolis postoffice, was arrested Tuesday on the charge of robbing the mails. He was taken before United States Commissioner. The prisoner is charged with robbing the postoffice of United States grand jury in $2,000 bonds. The amount of Walker's pecuniary approaches $600. The robberies date back to Oct. 17. Walker is a young man about 23 years old and has been employed in the postoffice since September. He parts his hair in the middle, wears striped trousers and a broad eyecup of white cloth. He did not appear at all concerned when arraigned this morning and refuses to say anything about the matter.

Two Murderers in One Family.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 6.—John Carter, a colored puddler, shot and fatally wounded Robert Gross, also colored yesterday, at the Solar iron works. Carter claims that the shooting was accidental, but Gross, in his dying deposition, alleges that the shooting was intentional and without provocation. Carter has been arrested. He is a brother of Jesse Carter, who was hanged three years ago for killing a man.

Dr. Queirolo indorses the ancient traditional treatment of acute fevers by diaphoresis (sweating), believing that poisonous matters are thus washed out of the organism, and he has confirmed himself in this belief by experiments on rabbits, injecting the sweat of persons suffering from various fevers with fatal effects upon rabbits.

THE WISCONSIN LEGISLATURE.

A Large Number of Bills Passed in Senate and Assembly.

Another Amendment to the State Constitution Passed By the Senate.

Special to the Gazette.

MADISON, March 6.—Among the bills passed by the senate this morning were: To create a municipal court in Ashland.

To appropriate fifty thousand dollars to the Waupesa Home.

Giving circuit court reporters two thousand dollars a year.

Providing that towns having water works need not keep a fire engine to secure two per cent from insurance companies.

To create a relief fund in Milwaukee. Authorizing the state superintendent to manage school libraries.

To make penalty for kidnapping ten years in prison.

Requiring treasury agent to make an annual report.

Increasing penalty for assault and robbery.

A joint resolution was passed to amend the constitution in relation to incorporation of cities and with reference to state superintendent.

Several petitions presented in the assembly favoring medical bill.

A bill was introduced increasing the salary of the mayor of Milwaukee from three to four thousand dollars, and a bill was passed authorizing the citizens of Ripon to vote for water works, and creating municipal court in Menominee, Dunn county.

Stealing a Trade.

We have all heard of "the little black-eyed rebel" who, by dint of a kiss and certain coquettish glances "from the corner of her eye," succeeded in carrying important dispatches in the enemy's very face. She is not the only patriotic girl who has made coquetry do military duty. In Margaret Sidney's "Old Concord" is the following story of Millie Barrett, who lived in that historic town in the revolutionary days. "Millie, being young and pretty, had learned how to coquet, and while on a visit to Cambridge, had captivated the hearts of some of the officers. Especially did she fascinate one of the officers, a tall, young man, like, used to tease him to tell her how they managed their military affairs, and how they made their cartridges."

He, man like, explained the process, but told Millie that if it were known in England that he had given her the secret, he should, on his return, lose his head—as though he had not already lost it.

After the eventful 19th of April, Millie went home to her father's house, and at once proceeded to use her newly acquired knowledge. She gathered all her mates about her, and told them the secret, then busily the young fingers flew, forming after the directions given by the Englishman, the cartridges that were to save her brave countrymen. The seizure that she used have been given to the Concord Library by a cousin of the heroine.

Dried Fruits.

The industry of drying and "evaporating" fruit in these days is of infinitely greater magnitude than it was in the days when our mothers used to "quarter and core" and string up apples by passing a cotton cord through the pieces with a darning needle and hang the festoons about the kitchen around the stove-pipe in an upper room, or when in summer raspberries and currants were exposed to the sun in plates and the drying process finished on papers or clean boards. One of the greatest centers of the dried-fruit industry to-day is Rochester, N. Y. Within a radius of forty miles from the city there are over 1,500 evaporators in operation, with capacities varying from twenty-five bushels to 1,000 bushels per day. During the fall and early winter about 30,000 people are employed in these establishments, earning from $5 to $12 a week. The product during 1887 was about 30,000,000 pounds of dried apples alone, requiring 5,000,000 bushels of apples, and the drying process took 15,000 tons of coal. Each 100 pounds of apples yields about twelve pounds of dried fruit. The prunings and cores are used as the basis of apple jellies, so that no fruit is wasted. Great quantities of dried apples are shipped to Europe every year.
